Corrado Mora is a qualified, accredited and certified international mediator and dispute resolution practitioner with over 20 years of experience in mediation, negotiation and conflict management. He is regularly appointed in cross-border, complex and multi-party disputes, particularly in commercial, business, intellectual property, workplace, sport and energy transition matters.

Corrado conducts approximately 180 mediations per year, both ad hoc and under institutional rules, and is known for his ability to manage high-stakes disputes involving multiple stakeholders, cultural differences and complex negotiation dynamics.

He serves on the panels of several leading international dispute resolution institutions, including: ICDR–AAA (New York), WIPO (Geneva), CPR (New York), CEDR (London), CAS (Lausanne), AIAC (Kuala Lumpur), PMAC (Ljubljana/Lisbon), AALCO-HKRAC (Hong Kong), CAM (Milan). He is also called upon as a Mediator for the ICC (Paris) and on the Mediator Search of the VIAC (Vienna). Member of the OECD's (Paris) Roster of Mediators for National Contact Points for Responsible Business Conduct.

In addition to his mediation practice, Corrado is an international trainer and academic in dispute resolution.

He is a Senior Faculty member and Course Director for mediation training programmes of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (CI Arb) and regularly delivers training on mediation, negotiation and conflict management for professionals, institutions and public organisations worldwide.

He has conducted more than 1.100 training courses in mediation and negotiation skills across Europe, Africa, Asia and the Middle East, and has served as contract trainer and consultant for international organisations including USAID, the EPO, the United Nations and UNDP.

Corrado is Adjunct Professor of Mediation and Negotiation at the University of Trento – School of Law and frequently serves as visiting professor and lecturer at universities and professional institutions internationally.

A qualified lawyer admitted to the Verona Bar, he holds an LL.M. in Alternative Dispute Resolution.

AREAS OF MEDIATION PRACTICE AND APPROACH

Cross-border commercial disputes, including international supply, distribution and agency agreements, termination of long-term commercial relationships, and multi-party business conflicts involving companies operating in different jurisdictions.

Business and corporate disputes, including shareholder and partnership conflicts, governance deadlocks, disputes between founders and investors, and complex business separations.

Intellectual property disputes, including trademark coexistence and brand conflicts, patent and design disputes, copyright matters, licensing agreements, and disputes relating to the commercial exploitation of intellectual property rights.

Sports disputes, including contractual disputes between athletes, clubs and agents, sponsorship and image rights disputes, and conflicts involving sports governance or commercial partnerships.

Workplace and organisational disputes, including conflicts between senior executives or teams, disputes relating to organisational restructuring, and workplace conflicts within companies and international organisations.

Energy transition and climate-related disputes, including conflicts involving renewable energy projects, infrastructure development and sustainability-related commercial relationships.

Corrado adopts a pragmatic, facilitative approach to mediation, grounded in independence, neutrality, confidentiality and informality. He focuses on creating a constructive environment in which parties can communicate effectively and engage in a structured negotiation process aimed at practical and mutually acceptable outcomes.

His practice frequently involves cross-border disputes, complex commercial relationships and multi-party negotiations. Through careful guidance and process management, he assists parties in moving beyond positional bargaining, exploring the underlying dynamics of the dispute and identifying sustainable solutions.

Attentive to the relational and emotional dimensions of conflict, he draws on a broad toolkit of techniques to support parties in regaining clarity and agency — enabling more grounded, durable and genuinely owned agreements.
